Regardless of what happens this afternoon and next week in the season finale against arch-rival South Carolina, Charley Pell's Clemson Tigers authored the Cinderella Story in college football for the 1977 season.

When North Carolina settled for a 13-13 tie in what Atlantic Coast sportswriters labeled "the game of the year in the ACC," Bill Dooley and his Tar Heels showed exactly how much respect they had for the Tiger defense.

For what the Clemson Tigers have accomplished this fall Charley Pell is a cinch to earn Coach of the Year honors in the ACC. And he's certainly going to be one of the select few NCAA Division I coaches to get strong consideration for that national honor as well.

Today's game against Notre Dame will signal the final appearance for two dozen seniors in Death Valley. Fourteen players will rub Howard's Rock and run down the hill for the last time in their career. Five student managers and five student trainers will be on these sidelines for the last time. And if you think these student assistants are of less importance to the entire football program at Clemson, just ask the players or the coaches. They're all part of the Clemson Family.

Senior student managers are Sam Gough, Jack Griffin, Donnie Kinard, Dennis McElhannon, and Randy Templeton. And the senior student trainers include Bill Blackston, Henry Judy, Hank Morrow, Paul Thacker, and David Williams.

Clemson University would like to thank these seniors for their total contribution to the football program.

Athletic Director Bill McLellan, Head Football Coach Charley Pell, and every member of the Clemson Tigers would like to thank the fans for their support this season. And although we won't know until late this afternoon, a record Death Valley crowd could witness the Tiger-Notre Dame clash.

Notre Dame's Fighting Irish are clearly the most formidable opponent to ever invade Death Valley. Picked by many pre-season prognosticators to claim the 1977 National Championship, Dan Devine's Irish have 18 of 22 starters back from last season's Gator Bowl Championship team.

And if that's not impressive enough, consider the fact that Notre Dame is ranked among the top five in the national polls, has an offense that averages 422 yards and 33 points a game, and a defense that has allowed but an average of 93.5 rushing yards by eight opponents and given up only one rushing TD all season.

Jerome Heavens is the top Irish rusher with 798 yards and four TDs on 176 carries. Dave Mitchell and Vagas Ferguson have netted 253 and 222 yards, respectively.

Junior quarterback Joe Montana directs the Notre Dame "I" attack, and if he's not dishing the pigskin to Heavens, Mitchell, or Ferguson, he's looking for All-America tight end Ken MacAfee who has 625 yards receiving and four TDs, or split end Kris Haines, who has 383 yards and one TD.

Defensively, the Irish are led by DE Ross Browner, LB Bob Golic, and backs Luther Bradley and Ted Burgmeier.

Browner was last year's Outland Trophy winner as the nation's outstanding lineman. Golic leads the Irish in tackles with 111.

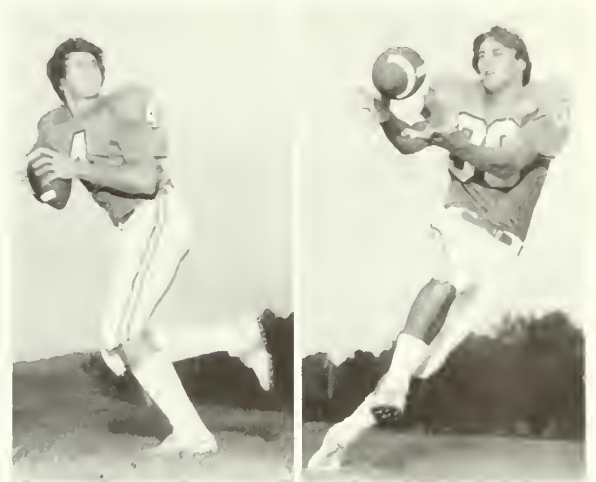

Steve Fuller has 1,455 total offensive yards this fall, which ranks as the fifth best single-season effort in Clemson history. The Tiger signal-caller has a shot at winning Player of the Year honors in the ACC.

Mini-back Warren Ratchford's 524 yards is a Clemson team high, and he had 65 rushing and 35 in pass receiving against UNC.

DE Mark Heniford was the leading head-hunter for the Tiger defense last week with 15 tackles. And the linebackers played well. Bubba Brown had 12 tackles, Ron Smith had 10, and Randy Scott had nine. And don't forget big Archie Reese. The Tiger tackle had eight stops and terrorized the Tar Heel offense all day.

Clemson enters today's game 7-1-1, and the Irish stand 7-1, fresh off a 69-14 drubbing of Georgia Tech.

1. Steve Fuller ranks among the nation's top quarterbacks. His 3,295 career offensive yards is only 463 shy of passing Bobby Gage as the all-time leader. 2. Dwight Clark was Clemson's top receiver against North Carolina with 45 yards on three catches. 3. Archie Reese has been a standout all season at tackle for the Tiger defense. His 64 tackles rank sixth on the team and tops as a down lineman. Big Arch has sacked opponent ball carriers for losses 14 times this fall. 4. Diminutive tailback Warren Ratchford has 1,226 yards rushing in this his third season, and is only 54 yards shy of moving into the top 10 career rushing leaders. Rat is already the career leader in kick returns with 756 yards on 35 returns.

The Clemson University Tiger band under the direction of Dr. Bruce Cook closes the home season today with highlights of the season's performances.

The band helps fire up the crowd for this afternoon's contest with perennial powerhouse Notre Dame with its pre-game program of "Sock It To 'Em" and "Tiger Rag," Clemson's traditional fight song. The pre-game program continues with Clemson University Chorus, under the direction of Dr. William Campbell, singing the National Anthem to the accompaniment of the band. The chorus concludes the pre-kickoff activities with its acapella rendition of the Clemson Alma Mater.

The Tiger Band enters the field at halftime to the tune of Chuck Mangione's "El Gato Triste," and moves into a circle drill. Next, the Latin strains of this John Tatgenhorst arrangement give way to the futuristic sound of "Star Wars." As the band moves into a flower drill, the percussion unit is featured to the music of David Miller's arrangement of the popular motion picture's theme.

The Tiger Band features the Tigerette twirlers, as it moves into another Chuck Mangione tune, the jazz/rock piece, "Bellavia."

After the Hall of Fame presentations, the Tiger Band introduces the Rally Cats, Clemson's basketball pom-pom squad, to the tune of Wayne Scott's arrangement of "Rocky."

Having completed its program of this season's highlights, the Tiger Band exits the field to its most well know selection, "Tiger Rag." The band is under the field direction of drum major Richard Moose of Newberry. The band commander is Tom Waldrop of Hanahan.

Bennie Cunningham Recalls

Few student-athletes can boast of the success that followed Clemson's Bennie Cunningham over the past decade.

Still, the most outstanding accolade that can be thrown his way is that he remains the polite, unassuming young man that he was on that very first day he entered Clemson.

Bennie grew up in nearby Seneca, less than 10 miles from where he electrified the Death Valley crowds.

His most memorable play came in a 29-28 loss to Tennessee at Knoxville his junior year in 1974.

Condredge Holloway, UT's artful dodger, had connected with fleet Stanley Morgan of Easley on a controversial hidden-receiver play that covered 65 yards and brought 66,334 Vol partisans to their feet in Neyland Stadium.

Two minutes later the score was tied at 7-7. Tiger quarterback Mark Fellers lofted a pass from his own 35-yard line which Clemson's "Young Giant" engulfed with his fingers at the Vol 45.

The 6-5, 255-pound Tiger flat turned on the burners. Not only did Bennie glide away from three UT defenders, including two of the Vol defensive backs, but he carried a 190-pound UT safety the remaining 10 yards to paydirt.

The play covered 65 yards.

He caught another TD aerial that afternoon which was two of seven scoring passes he nabbed that season. And that total tied Glenn Smith '51 for most TD receptions in a single year.

It takes hours of dedication and hard work to compete in college athletics. And for the most part, people will find that this hard work and sacrifice is not always fun. Yet most things in life which are worth achieving will require hard work, dedication, and sacrifice.

Clemson University was no exception. It took many hours of hard work to play football for the Tigers and still maintain a successful academic record. But I can truthfully say that my years at Clemson were certainly some of the best years of my life.

All of the coaches, my teammates, and the Clemson fans gave me all of the moral support that I could have possibly asked for, and this is something that can't be measured in tangibles. I could spend the rest of my life and never repay all of those people for that support and confidence.

One of the greatest thrills about playing football for the Tigers was the excitement, enthusiasm, and honor of running down the hill before a Saturday kickoff.

The bank was always lined with Clemson fans. It was like running through a tunnel with a deafening roar that penetrated your helmet. You finally hit the field level and ran through a tunnel of the band with the members playing "Tiger Rag." You were already excited, and when you finally reached the end of the band tunnel and broke for the sidelines, you saw an unbelievable sight. Thousands of orange-clad Clemson fans, standing, cheering, screaming. That's something I will never forget.

Of all the games that I remember from my Clemson career, our 1974 game with Tennessee was one of the most exciting. Although we lost that particular game, we played before over 65,000 fans on a crisp autumn afternoon and in a beautiful setting. Not only did we play well that day, that was the last game we lost of the year on our way to a fine 7-4 finish. We concluded the season with a 39-21 thrashing of arch-rival South Carolina which was a pleasure beyond compare.

I'll always remember the years that I spent at Clemson University. The support of the fans and the fellowship between people, not just as teammates but the entire student body and the entire Clemson community as well, are the main reasons that I am proud to say that I was a Tiger.

The story of Clemson University — from its beginning as an idea in the mind of Thomas Green Clemson to its emergence as an important center of teaching, research and public service — is a story of unique purpose.

When the aging Mr. Clemson envisioned this institution that has flourished so well on his plantation lands, he was mindful of a special mission it would have, one he stated clearly.

In the bitter economic conditions of his time, Mr. Clemson saw the college he dreamed of as the great hope for South Carolina farmers and the state's economic recovery. For only through the application of scientific education and technology to problem solving, he believed, could the people hope to attain a better quality of life.

In his wisdom and with an eye to the state's future needs, Mr. Clemson entrusted the Board of Trustees with the power to change the college's curricula to meet the changing needs of future generations.

Today, more than 84 years since that first class met in July 1893, the basic mission which Thomas Clemson stated — an institution to serve the people's needs — remains unchanged. But as these needs have changed and new technology comes of age, the University's programs have reflected these changing needs, as Thomas Clemson knew they must do.

Serving as Clemson's president for the past 19 years, Dr. Robert C. Edwards has set the pace for strong leadership and administrative direction during the university's greatest period of growth both in academic, physical expansion and in service to the State and its citizens.

Where the Blue Ridge yawns its greatness.

Clemson students number about 10,500 on campus.

More than 11,000 students pursue a wealth of academic programs in the university's nine colleges and graduate school. Colleges are agricultural sciences, architecture, education, engineering, forest and recreation resources, industrial management and textile science, liberal arts, nursing and sciences.

In terms of academic excellence, the quality of students entering Clemson is high and they are well prepared. In the 1976 freshman class 61 per cent graduated in the top 20 per cent of their high school class.

As a land-grant university, Clemson has statewide responsibilities in teaching, research and public service programs which are not available from any other source in the state.

And one of Clemson's major distinctions is the fact that the General Assembly has seen fit to assign the responsibility to Clemson of several state regulatory and consumer protection programs that are elsewhere handled by governmental agencies.

Like the changing needs of the state and nation, Clemson's physical facilities have grown to serve these requirements. On the campus proper of 600 acres rise academic buildings, student housing, service facilities and equipment valued at $125 million.

Centerpieces of the campus — and symbols of Clemson's heritage — are Tillman Hall with its clock tower and Fort Hill, the stately antebellum mansion of John C. Calhoun and later his son-in-law, Thomas Clemson.

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

Bill McLellan

Only the third man to own the title of Athletic Director at Clemson over the past 46 years, Bill McLellan was elevated to his present position February 4, 1971, following what had been more than a decade of service to the University's athletic organization.

A native of Hamer, S. C., the 45-year old McLellan graduated from Dillon High School and entered Clemson where he earned a pair of football letters, and was a member of the Tigers' 1952 Gator Bowl team.

He joined the athletic staff May 1, 1958 from Clemson's Department of Agricultural Economics and Seed Certification where he had spent one year as assistant agronomist and two years as assistant economist.

Although carrying the title of Assistant Business Manager, McLellan has been credited with handling the majority of the department's athletic business and operation long before his appointment into his present role.

In 1966, McLellan was named Assistant Athletic Director, and two years later was appointed Associate Athletic Director.

During his reign as Athletic Director, Clemson's athletic program has experienced a major upheaval.

The Tigers can boast of the finest athletic facilities in not only the Atlantic Coast Conference, but in the South as well.

The modern and spacious Jervy Athletic Center is one of the most complete facilities in America, and this complex serves as the home for Clemson's 18 sports — 12 men's and six women's.

The basketball Tigers play before packed crowds in attractive Littlejohn Coliseum, and many of the Clemson games are telecast on either regional or national networks.

And the football Tigers, after averaging better than 44,000 at home last fall, will be playing in a remodeled Memorial Stadium in '78 that will have some 53,000 permanent seats.

But conference titles and All-American honors have come to other sports as well, and McLellan's direction has given Clemson a program that was ranked 20th in the nation in overall excellence in 1975-76. Moreover, the basketball, fencing, and tennis teams enjoyed top 20 ranking in 1976-77, and the baseball and soccer teams both boasted of the nation's top rank at some point during their respective campaigns.

McLellan earned a B.S. degree from Clemson in agronomy in '54, and a master's in agricultural economics in '56. He is married to the former Ann Rogers of Fork, S. C. They have four children — Suzy, a senior at Winthrop; Bill, a sophomore at Spartanburg Methodist College; Cliff, a freshman at Tennessee Tech; and Arch Anna, a sophomore at Pendleton High School.

“Coach”

Charles Byron (Charley) Pell was named Clemson's 20th head football coach December 1, 1976.

Born in Albertville, Ala., the 36-year old Pell is in his second year on the Tiger staff, having served as assistant head coach and defensive coordinator during the 1976 campaign.

Pell played but one year of high school football, but went on the University of Alabama where he was a three-year letterman for the Crimson Tide.

At a light 180 pounds, Pell was a two-way starter as an offensive guard and defensive tackle, and played in the Orange, Sugar, and Bluebonnet Bowls during his career.

In his junior season, '61, Alabama won the National Championship.

Pell entered the coaching profession as a graduate assistant to his former tutor, Paul "Bear" Bryant in '64.

Charlie Bradshaw hired the young Pell as defensive line coach at the University of Kentucky where the latter spent the next four years, from '65 through '68.

Pell's first taste of head coaching came in December of '68 when he was selected to rebuild the Jacksonville, Ala., State University grid program.

During the next five seasons, '69 through '73, Pell built aggressive defensive teams that garnered a five-year mark of 33-13-1, including a 30-7-1 ledger his last four campaigns.

His 1970 JSU team was 10-0 which included a 21-7 win over Florida A&M in the Orange Blossom Classic, and was ranked second in the nation. His '72 team finished 10th nationally, and his '73 squad ranked fourth.

In '70, he was conference, district, area, and state of Alabama Coach of the Year, and runner-up for national coaching honors. He earned the state accolade again in '73.

He joined VPI's staff as assistant head coach and defensive coordinator in 1974, and remained there until coming to Clemson.

Pell took a defensive unit that ranked 128th nationally prior to his arrival and molded it into one that finished the '75 season as 29th toughest against scoring.

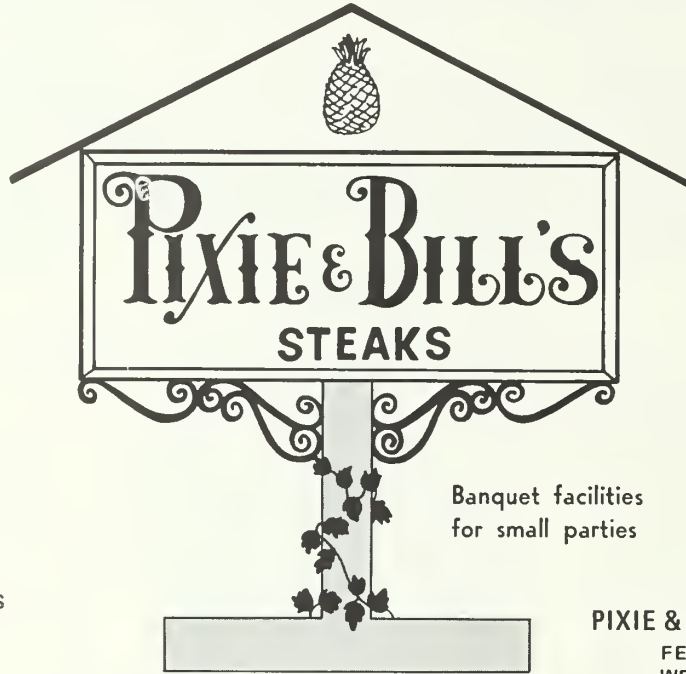

Pell earned his B.S. degree in business administration from Alabama in '64. He is married to the former Ward Noel of Lexington, Ky., and they have a son — Carrick (7).

GRADUATION DAZE.

CLEAR UP YOUR FUTURE IN THE 2-YEAR AFROTC PROGRAM.

What's up after college? That question is enough to get a lot of young people down. Air Force ROTC college graduates have that worry, too. But their immediate future (and longer if they choose) is much more secure. As a commissioned officer, there's a good job...Travel. Graduate level education. Promotions. Financial security. And really, lots more.

If you have two academic years remaining, there's a great 2-year AFROTC program still available to you. Look into the details. We think you'll be pleasantly surprised. And pleasantly rewarded.

The '77 Tigers

Clemson linebackers Randy Scott (35), Ronnie Smith (38), and Bubba Brown (47) have teamed for almost 300 tackles through nine games, and all rank among the top four on the team in individual tackles.

Harold Goggins

Like Jonathan, Harold is a Cadet Sergeant, and a junior.

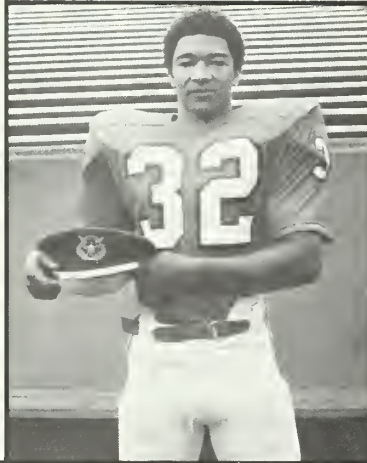

A product of Clinton, Harold has been the Tigers' second-leading ground gainer during his first two grid seasons at Clemson.

His best single-game effort was 137 yards in 17 carries against South Carolina his freshman year.

Jonathan Brooks

Jonathan is a Cadet Sergeant from Saluda, and a standout defensive end for the Tigers in this his junior season.

Jonathan has been one of the ACC's most outstanding defenders since arriving at Tigertown in 1975.

Tiger Outlook Bright in Predicted Banner Year for the ACC

In what should be a banner year around the basketball-crazed Atlantic Coast Conference, third-year Clemson coach Bill Foster has every right to believe that his Tigers will be in the thick of the fight for the 1978 league title.

The 10th winningest active major college coach with a 12-year record of 237-86, Foster has eight lettermen back from his record-setting 1977 team that won 22 of 28 games.

The Tigers will have to be at their best every night to better last season's performance, as '78 could be one of the best years ever for the ACC.

Seniors Colon Abraham (12.8), Jim Howell (6.1), and Stan Rome (15.3) top the returnee list, and in addition to boosting Clemson's inside game, the trio will be counted on to provide the leadership in 1978.

Four junior lettermen include Greg Coles (8.6), Marvin Dickerson (4.3), Derrick Johnson (8.5), and Jim "Chubby" Wells (6.6).

Coles and Johnson have two seasons of above average backcourt experience in the ACC, whereas Dickerson and Wells have given the Tigers impressive play inside.

Bobby Conrad (3.2), who plays the point guard along with Johnson, is the lone returning soph letterman.

Non-letterman returnees include Lee Anderson (1.8) and David Poole (1.0).

Four newcomers to the '78 contingent include John Campbell, Larry Nance, Billy Williams, and Stewart Zane.

Campbell and Williams are sophs who enter Tigertown after a year at Anderson JC and Brevard-Fla., CC, respectively, whereas Zane, a junior, transferred from UNC-Charlotte.

Nance is the only true freshman.

Foster's Tigers meet Marathon Oil of Lexington, Ky., in a 7:30 exhibition in Littlejohn Coliseum Tuesday night, then open the regular season November 25-26 in their own IPTAY Invitational with Ohio, Rhode Island, and Texas Christian.

1. Colon Abraham is generally regarded as one of the best pure shooters in the ACC, and earned the nickname as "designated sniper." 2. Jim Howell owns a career field goal percentage of better than 50 per cent, and his rebounding strength could be a prime factor for the Tigers in '78. 3. Stan Rome was Clemson's top scorer last winter. He's a two-time All-ACC second-team pick, and one of the nation's best all-around athletes.

QUALITY IN EVERY DETAIL

The Fred Hoover Family

Fred Hoover is in his 19th season as head trainer for the Clemson Tigers, and the family is extremely active in both campus and community affairs.

Catherine is a sophomore at Clemson where she is majoring in horticulture. A member of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority, Catherine was a Bengal Babe her freshman year.

Bryan is a junior at Daniel High School and member of the Lions' football team. Although he does not play on the school's basketball team, he enjoys spending his free time shooting basketball and dabbling in photography. Bryan is a dedicated weight lifter and big fan of the Tigers and the Dallas Cowboys.

Fred met Elva Cook of Mt. Vernon, Ill., while he was in the Air Force.

Although Elva relaxes in front of her sewing machine or with her plants, she has dedicated her efforts to her children.

"The entire family has learned through the years how to live with the long hours," explains Fred, who unlike a coach, has a year around job, not one that is seasonal. And the summers are spent in camps and clinics.

"Elva has been a wonderful mother to our children," he adds, "and on many occasions she has had to be a father as well, with me on the road."

The Clyde Wrenn Family

High school sweethearts in their hometown of Chester, Clyde and the former Willa Lynn, enjoy nothing better than packing up the boys and doing something together as a family.

Willa is a graduate of Columbia College and has seven years of public school teaching included in her repertoire.

It takes a special breed of woman to be a football wife, and according to her husband, "Willa is a super football wife and a great mother."

Active in the Clemson Women's Club, Willa has worked with the bible school at Clemson's United Methodist Church where she is currently teaching Sunday school.

Her home is open to many of the University students where she normally serves them homecooked meals on the weekend.

A second-grader at Morrison Elementary School, Craig loves his Tigers, the Minnesota Vikings, and air hockey, whereas Cal, a preschooler at the Episcopal Day School where Willa is teaching this fall, is a Tiger and Oakland Raider fanatic.

Although Cal, now five years old, has seen hundreds of football games, he had never seen an official throw a flag. Early in the '77 season while with his father at a high school contest, he noticed that procedure for the first time and remarked, "Daddy, what's that guy throw that panna peel for?"

The Wrenns are in their sixth year at Clemson.

The Tom Bass Family

Tom Bass is one of the veteran members of the Clemson staff, having been at Tigertown since 1967.

He served as a member of the football coaching corps for 10 years, and is currently an administrative assistant under AD Bill McLellan.

The former Susan Price of Knoxville, Tenn., attended East Tennessee State University, and is now completing work on her undergraduate degree in early childhood education at Clemson.

Susan, active in the Clemson United Methodist Church, finds time for reading and needlepoint in between her duties around the home and with her studies, and she plans to enter the teaching ranks upon earning her degree.

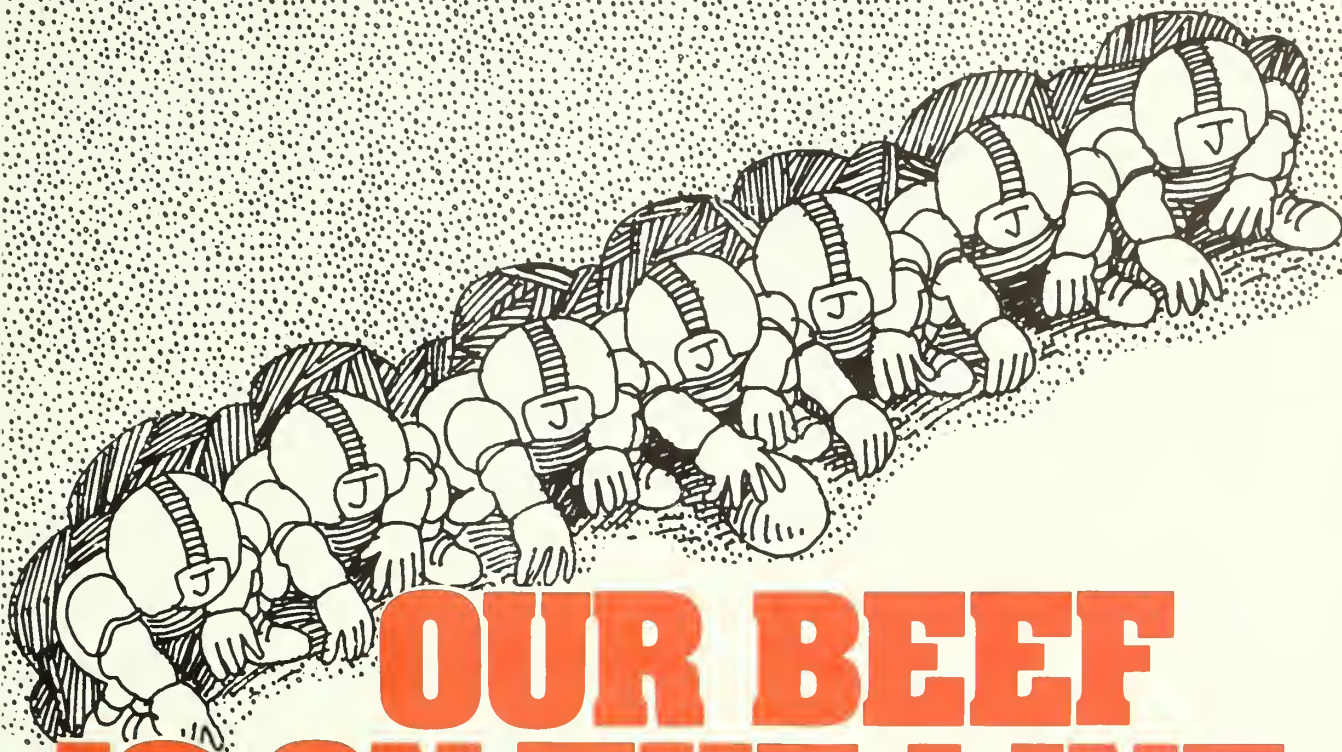

Steven is a seventh grader at R. C. Edwards Junior High School, and active sportsman. He pitched for his youth league baseball team this summer, has played basketball, and is currently involved in soccer. He also enjoys his local Boy Scout troop.

John began his educational process this fall as a first grader at Morrison Annex, and according to Tom, "was so anxious to get started that he couldn't sleep the night before his first day."

A collector of cars and Evel Kneivel on a bicycle, John has mastered the sound of a siren. "You'd think a fire truck or police car was in your front yard," explains his father.

Laura, a fourth grader at Morrison, is quite active in gymnastics, swimming, and diving, and is currently being tutored by Phyllis Grant, one of the divers on Clemson's Lady Tiger Swimming team.

OUR BEEF IS ON THE LINE TOO.

What makes Hungry Bull better is the beef we serve. Only the best U.S. graded choice western beef meets the Hungry Bull standards. Because we know that's what you expect. If your steaks, fresh-cut daily, weren't the finest quality—at prices easy to swallow—you wouldn't come back. But they are. So, stop by real soon. Like after the game?

Tom Hunter has been called a fan for all seasons.

It's an unofficial honor which this 1909 Clemson alumnus rightfully deserves, and one which says it all about his feelings toward his alma mater.

He's sure to be in the stands today, just like he always is, rootin' for the Tigers. But it doesn't have to be an athletic event to bring Tom Hunter out for Clemson.

No matter what arena Clemson's performance is in—athletic or academic—Thomas Mitchell Hunter is there on the sidelines as a fan of the total Clemson University.

There's no mystery, however, about Mr. Hunter's devotion to Clemson. He simply feels that his Clemson education was largely responsible for much of the success he has enjoyed in a 60-year career as an engineer, designer, executive, inventor, and consultant in the field of electrical power transformers.

"It was one of the best things that I ever did," Mr. Hunter said of his decision to attend Clemson. He was one of seven boys and a girl born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert T.C. Hunter of Prosperity in Newberry County.

Mr. Hunter has often said that his life took the course it should have taken when he came to Clemson and earned an engineering degree.

But even before Tom Hunter unpacked his bags at Clemson in 1905, the Hunter family's lives and that of the institution were closely intertwined. Mr. Hunter's father was a member of the S.C. House of Representatives the year it voted on acceptance of Thomas Green Clemson's bequest for establishment of the college.

And an older brother, Joseph Everett "Little Joe" Hunter, was a member of Clemson's first graduating class in 1896. After teaching four years in the public schools of Newberry County, "Little Joe" Hunter returned to Clemson where he taught mathematics to three generations of Clemson men and was one of the best loved professors of all time.

In 1973, Tom Hunter expressed his appreciation for what Clemson has meant to him in a lasting and far-reaching way.

With a deferred gift of $500,000 to the Clemson University Foundation, Mr. Hunter established the first fully endowed chair at the university and one of the few of its kind in the nation.

"The Hunter Endowed Chair of Bioengineering" was announced in March 1973 and honors "Little Joe" Hunter who died in October 1952 at age 78.

At that time Mr. Hunter said: "They say in Wall Street that it is always good to get in on the ground floor, but the Good Book also says that it is not good for man to be alone; therefore, I hope others will join me so I am not alone."

Since then, others have joined Mr. Hunter and the welcome mat is always out. Two other endowed chairs have been announced—The Charles Carter Newman Endowed Chair of Natural Resources Engineering in the College of Agricultural Sciences and The Frank Henry Leslie Endowed Chair of Natural Sciences in the College of Sciences.

Like the Hunter chair, the Newman and Leslie chairs were established through the Clemson University Foundation which receives and manages current and deferred gifts to be used for the advancement of Clemson University.

The Foundation is working to have at least one endowed chair in each of the university's nine colleges by 1982.

Recently, Tom Hunter sat back in his favorite rocking chair in his seventh floor Clemson House suite which overlooks the campus that has been so much a part of his life. He reflected on those early days at Clemson and his professional life when he designed transformers for such men as Thomas A. Edison and Guglielmo Marconi who developed wireless telegraphy.

Although Tom Hunter's professional career took him North for 67 years, that hard-to-define magnetism of Clemson brought him, as it did "Little Joe" Hunter, back to the campus for his retirement years in the early 1970s.

In a real sense, he has come back to the place where he built a solid foundation for his life's work.

"For me, Clemson was the beginning that made it possible for me to accomplish all of the things that I have."

Where Are They Now?

BEN ANDERSON, Clemson: Entering Clemson in the fall of 1969 without a football scholarship, Ben Anderson started all five freshman games that season and then started 33 consecutive varsity contests. He was named to All-ACC team three straight years and was selected to the All-America Academic second team. In addition to being an outstanding athlete, he was also a campus leader. As a senior he was awarded the Norris Medal, emblematic of the best all-around student at Clemson. He also received the Croxton Ferris Mobley Award for the highest scholastic average of a student athlete; received the first James F. Byrnes American Government Award as the outstanding senior majoring in Political Science; received a NCAA Post-Graduate scholarship; and received the Jim Weaver Post-Graduate scholarship. Graduating from Clemson with a 3.78 GPR, he entered the University of South Carolina Law School where he earned his law degree, being one of the top graduates in his class. He currently serves as the assistant university counselor for Clemson University.

PAUL HOOLAHAN, North Carolina: A former All-Atlantic Coast Conference offensive tackle, Paul Hoolahan is now athletic fitness director at North Carolina. He was a star performer on the 1970 UNC team which posted an 8-3 record and went to the Peach Bowl. Don McCauley set an NCAA single-season rushing record that year and much of his yardage was a result of Hoolahan's blocking. After leaving North Carolina, he became supervisor of the Aquatics Division of Nassau County Recreation and Parks on Long Island. Simultaneously, he served as a football coach and director of physical development at St. Francis Preparatory School. He returned to Carolina in June 1976 to accept his present position. In his role as athletic fitness director, his chief responsibility is to supervise strength development programs for all UNC varsity intercollegiate teams. The program differs from sport to sport and from position to position within a sport. He supervises programs for both men and women athletes.

LARRY RUSSELL, Wake Forest: The year 1970 marked Wake Forest's first and only ACC football championship. There would be few arguments that the player who keyed that team was quarterback Larry Russell, a firebrand who graduated from Wake as a two-time all-conference player and the school's sixth-leading passer and second-leading rusher. Russell coached at Wake for one season under Tom Harper, but quickly decided that it might be time for a departure. "If I really wanted to," he says now, "I think I could have found a place for myself in football, but my head wasn't in it." In June, 1973, he took a job selling furniture in Indiana and Ohio. Then, he got the opportunity to become a furniture sales representative, working out of his hometown of Newberry Port, Mass. He has worked there for Classic Leather Vanguard, St. Timothy and Craftwork Guild Furniture companies from January of 1975 to the present.

HERBERT BRYANT

DAVE SIME

COLLICE MOORE

COL. TOM FIELDS

HERBERT BRYANT, Virginia: Entering the University of Virginia in the fall of 1928, J. C. Herbert Bryant became one of the few Cavalier athletes ever to earn four varsity letters in one year. He accomplished that feat in the 1929-30 academic session, earning them in football, baseball, boxing and track. In competition which included all colleges from Maryland through Florida and west to the Mississippi plus Tulane and LSU, Bryant was voted by the sports writers as the "Best All-Around Athlete in the South" for the year 1930-31. He was selected to the first team All-Southern football squad in 1932 and at 5-11 and 214 pounds his senior year, he was the fastest player on the squad. He was also state champion in the shot and discus twice. He is currently Chairman of the Board and Director of O'Sullivan Corporation in Winchester, Va., and a partner in Herbert Bryant Associates of Alexandria, Va. He has been a director of numerous businesses and has had a seat on the New York Stock Exchange since 1942.

DAVE SIME, Duke: One of Duke's all-time great athletes, Dave Sime is remembered by most fans for his seven world records in track, but he also played football and baseball for the Blue Devils. At one time billed "the world's fastest human," Sime was a natural at the lonesome end position on the football squad in 1957. His blinding speed made him a deep threat on every play. In baseball, he led Duke to the ACC crown in 1957 with a .376 batting average. In track, he had no equal. In a span of two weeks as a sophomore, he set three world records in the 100 and 220 dash events and the 220 low hurdles. Today, he has added the title of doctor to his name and is one of the leading ophthalmologists in the United States practicing from his Miami, Fla., office.

COLLICE MOORE, N.C. State: All-Atlantic Coast Conference tackle in 1960 in the days of one-platoon football, Collice Moore was also a fine punter and pass receiver on tackle-eligible plays, one reception going for a touchdown that beat Mississippi Southern, 20-13. He later played in the North-South All-Star game and in the Senior Bowl. His most memorable game was a 3-0 win over North Carolina after the Tar Heels had first-and-goal at the one during the last three minutes. He is now the senior member of Moore and Sauter, a real estate consultant and development firm in Greenville, N.C. He is involved in appraisal of all classes of real estate as a professional appraiser with the prestigious M.A.I. designations, owns and leases Greenville office buildings, and has a partnership with franchise rights for Western Sizzlin' Steak Houses in five cities. He is married to the former Ann Nichols of Greenville and they have three children.

TOM FIELDS, Maryland: While attending Maryland in the early '40's, Tom Fields was a member of the cross country and track teams. He was the school's first cross country All-American and during his stay won six Southern Conference championships, capturing titles in the mile, two mile and cross country. He was also a member of the Maryland relay team that captured the Championship of the Americas crown in the distance medley and four-mile relays. He entered the Marine Corps and during his 28 years of service rose to the rank of colonel and saw combat action in three wars. During World War II, he served in combat at Cuadalcanal, Bougainville, and Iwo Jima. At the time of his retirement he was the Deputy Director of Information at Marine Corps Headquarters. He now heads up the Maryland Education Foundation. When he took control of this fund raising organization, contributions for the 1970 fiscal year totaled $30,000. By the end of the 1977 fiscal year, contributions for athletic scholarships at Maryland had exceeded $700,000. Membership in the Terrapin Club increased from the original 132 members to its current level of 1,650.

GREENVILLE, S. C. 29602

Five former Tiger athletes and one special inductee are being named to the Clemson University Athletic Hall of Fame during special halftime ceremonies at today's game. This is the fifth annual induction and brings to 30 the number who are now members.

The special inductee is Hoke Sloan, who was a charter member of IPTAY in 1934, and is still active in the organization today as a representative at-large. He is the largest total contributor to the club, and from 1937 through 1946, was a field worker for IPTAY.

Sloan also served as varsity tennis coach for 28 years and later contributed the money for construction of the A. Hoke Sloan Tennis Center, which is the hub for tennis activity on the campus.

Dr. Wallace R. Roy of Orlando, Fla., earned two letters in both football (1924-25) and basketball (1925-26), but he was probably most famous for his track accomplishments for three years.

In 1925 he set new school, state and conference marks in the quarter mile and came in fifth in the NCAA meet in Chicago a year later in '26. He was a member of distance medley relay team which set a new American record in the Tech Relays in 1925. And in 1926 was awarded the (Billy) Laval Medal as the best all-round athlete in the state. Coach Bud Saunders called Roy "the finest athlete I ever coached."

George Fritts was a tackle on Clemson's first bowl team — the 1940 Cotton. He is now assistant principal at Savannah (Ga.) High School.

Letting in track in 1940-41-42, Fritts threw the discus and shot put and was state champion in the discus in 1940 when Clemson won the state meet.

Fritts, a native of Lenoir City, Tenn., lettered in 1939-40-41 in football and each of these years was named to the all-state squad as well as to the All-Southern teams. He was also a member of the All-South unit and played in the Blue-Gray Classic in Montgomery, Ala., in 1941, along with teammate Joe Blalock, a previous inductee into the Hall of Fame.

Frank Gillespie, now with IBM in Valrico, Fla., was Clemson's last three-sport letterman. He lettered in baseball in 1943 before spending three years in the Signal Corps. Returning to Clemson, he was a starting guard on the Tiger football team three years.

A native of Beckley, W. Va., Gillespie was also a starting guard in basketball for three years and played three more years in baseball at third base where he made the all-state team. A near 'A' student in the classroom, he majored in electrical engineering and double majored in textile engineering and was president of the senior class.

Gillespie was the recipient of the McKelvin Award, emblematic as athlete-of-the-year in the Southern Conference.

Jackie Calvert was a dash man on the track team in 1949-50-51, but is best remembered as the tailback on the 1948-49-50 football teams which were undefeated in '48 and '50 and champions of the 1949 Gator Bowl and the 1951 Orange Bowl. Following the 1950 season, Calvert was named All-America first team safety.

Calvert, a native of Spartanburg, was one of four backs on the 1948 team who would gain over 2,000 yards before completing their Clemson careers.

After defeating Presbyterian in the opening game of '50, Calvert gained 550 yards the next two games against Missouri and N. C. State and the Tigers were off to their second undefeated season in three years and a victory over Miami in the Orange Bowl.

Rusty Adkins, the sixth inductee today, played only baseball, but he left his mark well in that sport. Lettering in 1965-66-67, he was all-conference and All-America three consecutive years. When Adkins completed his eligibility, he owned 10 season and career school records and was second or third in nine others.

During his career he scored 109 runs, had 150 hits, 22 doubles, 17 triples, 239 total bases and a .379 lifetime batting average, third best in history. If those figures don't impress, consider the fact that the Fort Mill native went 32 games without striking out and hit safely in 41 consecutive games.

He led the Tigers to the conference championship in 1967, and in his last at bat against Auburn about 2 a.m. in the District III playoffs, he hit a home run in the 13th inning — his last hit as a Tiger — just like his first one — a home run against The Citadel in 1965. There were 148 others in between.

Special Recognition

During the fiscal year of 1976-77, Clemson's IPTAY Club experienced its finest year. For the thirteenth consecutive year contributions exceeded those of the previous twelve month period. IPTAY President George Poole, Jr. and his staff, along with the more than 400 IPTAY Representatives, led the organization to a record setting year. An increase of almost twelve percent above last year's contributions was realized and the organization achieved one hundred and seven percent of its projected goal.

Where the Blue Ridge yawns its greatness

Where the Tigers play;

Here the sons of dear old Clemson,

Reign supreme always.

CHORUS

Dear old Clemson, we will triumph

And with all our might

That the Tiger's roar may echo

O'er the mountain height.

*Alumni Loyalty Fund—
Many Things To Many People*

They are doctors, lawyers, teachers, farmers, businesspersons, military strategists, public servants. They have a lot going for them. They have an opportunity to grow. And their roots are here on this campus. They are former students of this institution in the foothills of South Carolina.

Clemson University has been involved in providing one of this nation's most vital resources since 1893. Yet, the educational capabilities of Clemson continue to mount, and the University has a vibrant incentive to demonstrate its ability, and an objective yardstick to measure it.

As Clemson University continues its contribution to the development of this state, it remains an indispensable part of its future. Combine capacity, ability and opportunity and you conclude that potential is virtually unlimited.

It is, with your help. Graduates, former students and friends of Clemson are not only a source of pride for the University but a monumental strength in undergirding its educational programs with annual investments in the institution through the Clemson Alumni Loyalty Fund and other development opportunities at the University.

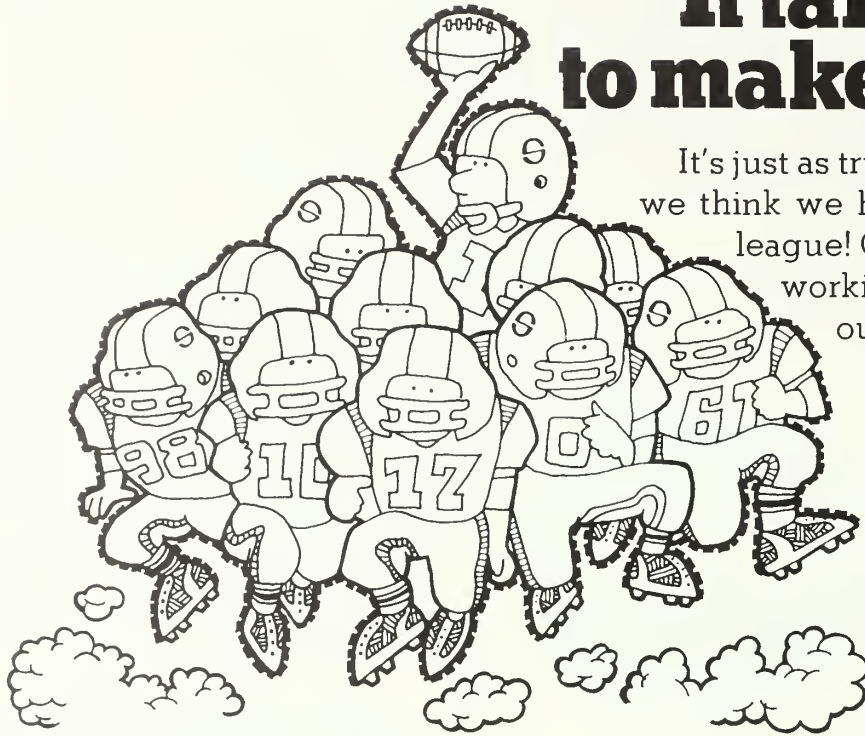

But greater challenges lie ahead. Knowledge has multiplied beyond comprehension; the domestic and world situations have become unwieldy and precarious. To make sure performance measures up to potential, Clemson University utilizes wisely and frugally every source of aid possible from all sectors of a free society — private citizens and foundations, business and industrial organizations, state and federal governments.

Now, more than ever before, Clemson needs you, your interest, and your investment in education. Now, more than ever before, won't you consider what you can do for Clemson?

Spotlighting The Seniors

Ken Callicutt

Ronnie Smith

Archie Reese

Ken Callicutt, Ronnie Smith, and Archie Reese are three of Clemson's 14 seniors who will make their final appearance in Death Valley against Notre Dame this afternoon.

Tailback/fullback Ken Callicutt will finish his Clemson career as the Tigers' fourth-leading all-time rusher.

A product of Chester, he holds school records for most yards rushing as both a freshman (505) and sophomore (809).

That latter campaign, in 1974, Callicutt turned in his best single-game rushing effort of his Tiger career with 197 yards against South Carolina. And that same season he amassed 230 yards against North Carolina, 170 rushing and 60 passing.

Academic difficulties kept Callicutt out of action last fall, and he even spurned an offer from a Canadian Football League team last spring in order to return in '77 for his senior year.

One of the three married players on the team, Callicutt is also one of only four players in Clemson history to have over 2,000 rushing yards in a career.

Few players have entered Clemson on the heels of a prep career that would match the one that Ronnie Smith enjoyed at Sylva-Webster High School in Sylva, N. C.

A prep All-American, Smith rushed for over 4,000 yards from his fullback position, and gained quite a reputation as a linebacker.

Although the Tigers gave him a shot at both positions, Smith was a natural at linebacker. He got in enough playing time with the varsity as a freshman to earn a letter, and even picked off a pair of opponent passes that year.

He was a starter in both '75 and '76, and is a starter, along with Bubba Brown, at his linebacking spot this year.

Smith is majoring in pre-architecture.

A recent newspaper article carried the three-column head — "Archie Reese Is A Doctor Of Defense."

And the way the 263-pound tackle is playing, he could very well earn his Ph.D. by the end of the year.

One of the team's top tacklers, Reese, from Mayesville's Mayewood High School, has been one of the Tigers' leading "big play" makers in 1977.

Nine-game stats have him ranked sixth on the team in total tackles and second to all-star linebacker Randy Scott in tackles for a loss.

This talented lineman spent some duty with Clemson's offensive front in 1975, but was moved back to his more natural slot at defensive tackle late in that same season.

Reese had his finest spring practice ever in '77, and is certainly enjoying his most impressive regular season showing in his Clemson career.

"A Lion's Share" is a mixture of the comic and the tragic, reflecting author Mark Steadman's feeling that "Overall, life is tragic, but moment by moment it's a lot of fun. The things I remember most are the sort of comic passages."

Steadman, a member of the Clemson University English faculty since 1957, describes "A Lion's Share" as being about "a high school football player who has great promise but finally fails, with a collateral story about an older man who never has any promise at all. And he fails too."

The principal character, Jack Curran, is based on someone who was Steadman's best friend for about a year in the late 1940s. In the book Steadman projects and magnifies his friend's heroic potential.

The author depicts Jack as "the kind of romantic or idealist who expects too much of the world and can't compromise with it."

Steadman's first published book was "McAfee County." The original typescript for his second book, "A Lion's Share" was 800 pages.

Quarterback Aaron "Bomber" Stern had poise and a great arm, too. But one monumental failing canceled out all his natural strong points. He would absolutely run out of the stadium and climb a light tower before he would let a tackler lay a finger on him.

He had to cut that to 600, which turned out to be 389 pages when the hardback edition was printed by Holt, Rinehart and Winston. A $1.75 paperback by Avon Books is now on the stand.

He has reached the rewriting stage on "a somewhat shorter book, a contemporary love story."

By Coke Ellington University News Editor

Boniface College was the Catholic boys' prep school, run by Benedictine Fathers. The "Fighting Irish" is what they called themselves, and their colors were green and white. They liked to think of themselves as a little Notre Dame, though their actual record as a football team made that difficult, at least in the closing years of World War II and just after.

—(When Jack Curran returns from a New Orleans prep school in 1947 to spend his last year at Boniface College in his hometown of Savannah, Ga., the team has won three games in four years. The whole 1946 first team is back for another season. The team includes a quarterback who has a great arm but can't stand to be tackled, one end with 9.9 feet and 12-flat hands, another end with great hands but an uncanny knack for stopping a yard short of the first down, and a 225-pound tackle who makes nonaggression pacts with opposing linemen. Jack begins to pull the team together.)

They liked to talk about his size, but the truth is that the myth never did catch up with reality there.

Jack weighed 240, but even the biggest of the bigmouths were afraid to stretch the story that far. They didn't know how much he weighed really, but were building on his playing weight for the 1946 season, which they did know . . . It had been 215, which everybody assumed was a lie in the first place.

Dimmy Camack was the fullback . . . five feet seven inches tall and 195 pounds. No matter which way you turned him, he seemed to have the same dimensions—frontward, sideways, or upside down. He always ran looking down at the ground . . . he would rumble by, and Aaron would sock the ball into his gut, dancing off to the side to get out of the way. Dimmy would hit into the line without looking up to see if the hole had opened or not, because, fundamentally, he didn't give a damn. "Hit dat line. Hit dat line." That was about it as far as Dimmy was concerned. More than a few of his teammates thought how nice it would be if they could swap some of Dimmy's heart for just a little more head.

But it wasn't. And then Jack had had a growing spurt over the winter, going up an inch in height, to 6 feet 4, and gaining 25 pounds. The standards of the time wouldn't let that be possible, and besides, the ones who were making up the stories didn't have all that much imagination and had to hold closer to reality than is good for really artful lying. The only Savannah player then on the first team of a major college was Leon Hook, who was playing center for Georgia Tech at 175 pounds, and they felt like they had to keep that in mind. In those days a playing weight of over 200 pounds had to be sworn to on a Bible and signed by a notary public. Anything over 220 was regarded as an outright lie just on the face of it. And even then, the really big men usually turned out to be lardasses, who were suited up mostly for the psychological advantage of having their weight listed in the program.

Two weeks into practice, the usual lethargy was gone. Everyone was attentive and alert. Well, relatively. Things weren't A-1, letter-perfect, but they were silver and gold to what they had been before. A sense of how well everybody else was doing his job began to filter in under the helmets.

They were coming up on the first real test, which came just before the season opened. The traditional varsity-alumni game.

Horse Rooney, the All-State fullback from the 1942 championship team — the one that had beaten Boy's High of Atlanta, was as mean a snake as ever pulled a green jersey over his head, and as big a one as well. He had made the first team at Boniface in 1939 as a freshman at the playing weight of 185, attracting the coach's attention by breaking the collarbone of the first string right guard during a practice scrimmage. His senior year he had weighed 215, and there weren't eleven men in the state who could stop him in less than five yards. For the four years since his graduation, Horse had had his natural snake instincts honed up for him by the United States Marine Corps, which had put thirty more pounds of meat on him, and then had taught him eleven ways to kill a man with his bare hands. He wasn't in tip-top shape, but he figured to kill about four or five linemen before his wind gave out. Starting with Jack Curran

Frog Finnechairo was at left end . . . and his build was very peculiar. Two-thirds of his height was from his waist down, like one of those roly-poly toys with a weight in the bottom that you can't knock down. Frog was short, but . . . he could make a vertical leap of four feet from a standing start. Frog's main trouble was that he didn't move too well after he caught the ball, and where he came down is where they nailed him usually. Also his sense of direction left a lot to be desired. He never did know where he was on the field. If Boniface needed 25 yards for a first down, Frog would go out and plant himself 24 yards down the field.

Horse had a quick start, and was going flat out on the second step he took. But Jack had the faster reflexes, and they came together on the alumni side of the line.

Talking about it afterward, everybody who was there to see it put it in terms of the way they'd felt seeing the newsreel pictures of the atom bomb going off in Alamogordo, N.M. Jack took him high, getting his right shoulder pad into Horse's face and wrapping his arms around him on the outside. Jack never broke stride. There was just a big cracking sound, like a fieldpiece going off, then the two of them were moving away toward the alumni goal line. Horse's head in Jack's shoulder and both legs sticking out under Jack's arms. The impact split the center seam on Horse's helmet, and flipped it off his head backward so it hung on his neck by the chin strap, like a Mexican bandit's sombrero. And his shoulder pads flapped up out of his jersey like the wings on a beetle.

Flasher Lynch played right end, was the fastest man on the squad and had the reflexes of a bat, and liked to show off. No matter what the play called for, he would break down the sidelines for 25 or 30 yards, then cut and begin running from one side of the field to the other to aggravate the secondary. Aaron would be back there yelling at him to turn around so he could see the ball coming.

Jack set him down gently on the 42-yard line and stood looking at him with his hands on his hips. Then he looked back at the other players. No one moved or said anything. They were staring at him, some with their mouths hanging open, jumping their eyes up and down from Jack to Horse and back again.

With everybody watching him, he walked down the middle of the field to where the ball was, on the varsity 35-yard line, moving very slowly and deliberately the whole way. When he got to the ball, he put his foot on it. Then he reached down and tapped it with his hand.

"Our ball," he said.

About the Artist

One of the few women editorial cartoonists in the United States, Kate Palmer says this flaky profession causes her to cultivate a skepticism that accepts nothing at face value and a habit of looking for the potential humor in every political and social situation.

Getting from her home town of Orangeburg to the editorial page of the Greenville News took her awhile.

She started out as an art major at Winthrop College, but soon transferred to the University of South Carolina, where she majored in elementary education and drew a comic strip for the campus newspaper. She taught in Seneca for a year before she and Jim Palmer, a Clemson University extension agronomist, got married.

They started raising a family, which now includes James, 6, and Salley, 3. And Kate did some serious painting on a free-lance basis.

In 1972 she began doing three cartoons a week for the Seneca Journal and the Clemson Messenger. That lasted about a year.

Then she found an opening at the Greenville News, where each week she has been working two days and drawing four cartoons.

The faster it spins, the more you spend.

The purpose of that rotating disk on your electric meter is to measure the amount of power being used.

The more you're using, the faster it goes. And the higher your monthly bill will be.

Keep that in mind. And use electricity wisely.

Because whenever you waste power, you waste money.
